

PG Cert International Student Advice and Support

The Postgraduate Certificate International Student Advice and Support addresses the needs of a range of professionals whose roles involve the recruitment and personal, academic and professional support of international students.

The UK Council for International Students Affairs (UKCISA) has chosen The University of Nottingham's School of Education, with its expertise in counselling and international education, as their preferred institution to deliver this innovative qualification for professionals working in the sector.

This programme will address the central issues facing international student advisers in their day-to-day working lives and will enable them to interpret changing political, social and legal frameworks. It will also develop their understanding of the cultural and psycho-social aspects involved in offering advice and support to international students.

This programme is ideal for you if you are working (or are aiming to secure a role) in student support services or international offices in the independent sector (eg English Language schools, public schools etc), higher education or further education.

Course content and structure

The aims of the programme are to:

- provide a challenging and professionally worthwhile academic course in international student advice and support for postgraduate students from a range of educational contexts
- provide an experiential learning environment that supports students in developing an understanding of theory and practice in international student advice and support, and key issues involved in managing a complex, dynamic educational, legal and political framework
- promote learning and self-awareness through reflection on direct experience of roles, relationships and responsibilities in an experiential laboratory setting
- provide an environment which encourages an appreciation of professional issues in working with international students, colleagues and external agencies, such as ethics, boundaries, confidentiality, referral and legal issues

The PG Cert International Student Support and Advice starts in November and can be completed over one year part-time.

Each module is delivered in a 2.5 day intensive block (generally from Friday afternoon to Sunday; 4 hours on Friday; 7 hours on Saturday and 4 hours on Sunday = 15 hours).
