

Those with Section 67 leave

(use this category only if the academic year you are paying fees for starts before 1 August 2023)

The requirements for this category will become a little more generous on 1 August 2023, so look at the category titled 'Those with Section 67 leave (use this category only if the academic year you are paying fees for starts on or after 1 August 2023)' too, for information about fees for academic years that start on or after 1 August 2023.

This category is only for students who start their course on or after 1 August 2019.

In order to qualify for 'home' fees under this category, you must meet all of the following criteria:

(a) you must be ordinarily resident in the UK on the first day of the first academic year of the course; and

(b) on the first day of the academic year you are paying fees for, you must be either:

1. a person with Section 67 leave (it doesn't matter if the Section 67 leave is for a limited period, or an indefinite period); or
2. a dependent child of a person with Section 67 leave, who has been granted leave for the same period;

and

(c) you must have been ordinarily resident in the UK and Islands throughout the period since being granted your leave.

(d) Only if you are being assessed for an academic year starting before 1 August 2021: you must have been ordinarily resident in the UK and Islands for the full three-year period before the first day of the first academic year of the course.

Expiry date for leave

The leave might have an expiry date. If the person makes an application to extend or change their leave before it expires, and that application is not decided before the expiry date, then immigration law dictates that they carry on being treated as a person with the old leave while they wait for a decision to be made (and if their application is refused, then also while they wait for an appeal or administrative review of the decision). They count as a person with the old type of leave for fee assessment purposes during all of that time.

Becoming eligible

If you are, or if your parent is, granted section 67 leave after the start of the course, you will be entitled to 'home' fees from the start of the next academic year, if you meet the requirements of this category or the category titled 'Those with Section 67 leave (use this category only if the academic year you are paying fees for starts on or after 1 August 2023)'.
